

TELEHEALTH

Telehealth is all about having a consultation with a healthcare provider by phone or video call. Many GPs, specialists, and other healthcare providers now offer a telehealth consultation when a physical examination isn't necessary. It's not intended to replace essential visits to the doctor, but rather be a convenient solution when you can't see a doctor face to face.

Telehealth has been transformational to Australia's universal healthcare program, Medicare. It has played a critical role in ensuring the continuity of care for hundreds of thousands of Australian patients.

Telehealth allows you to get the health care you need, where and when you need it.

Founded in Australia in 2011, GP2U is Australia's only dedicated online medical practice. Their goal is to deliver healthcare to patients on their terms, by allowing consultations to occur where and when it suits them.

The GP2U proprietary software facilitates secure video-based consultations and is deeply integrated into the Australian healthcare system allowing them to deliver prescriptions, pathology requests, specialist referrals' and secure provider to provider messaging.

In 2015 GP2U successfully completed a Series A capital raise and welcomed ASX listed, Sonic Healthcare and leading private health insurer HCF as partners and investors.

While GP2U maintain offices in Hobart and Melbourne, GP2U is a truly virtual practice with medical practitioners delivering care from anywhere in Australia to patients in metro, regional, remote and foreign locations.
